Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

Entered at the Postoffice at Barre as Second Class Matter.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1906.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

3,885

And now comes the weather Man with his stories.

Judging from the silence, Witte must have proven exceedingly wise in Russia.

The ice man need not go out of business just yet for lack of material; and unfortunately we still need the coal man.

Rutland is to be congratulated over its prospects. Building operations are in a way a measure of prosperity, and over fifty houses were erected there last year.

And now such is Barre's name as a granite center that titles like "Barre of the South," etc., are being applied to hustling communities as a sort of trade mark.

Vermont is getting back a reputation for having people of unusual longevity. With a Springfield woman dying at the age of 105 years for a starter the ages range down to the octogenarians. Of the latter the town of Barre has 37, and only three "old" people died there last year. A few years ago Barre had a resident who lived to the age of 107 years. To have followed the theory of Charles Elliot Norton these people would have been chloroformed.

PRIZE FIGHTERS AND NEW YORK HOTELS.

Poor Jack O'Brien! O'Brien is a professional pugilist, and is known to fame nowadays as the vanquisher of the man with a mighty punch—Bob Fitzsimmons. He waited until Bob got old and stiff and then went at him, delivering the jab which took the wind and sand out of the Cornishman simultaneously. Then and there the veteran went down and threw up the sponge, that is, in historical language he did. Since vanquishing the old fellow, "Philadelphia Jack," whose real name is Joseph F. Hagen, has been going up and down the country and East and West, listening to the plaudits of the admiring multitude. Lately O'Brien has effected the most modish in wearing apparel and has frequented the most fashionable hotels. For a week or more he has been in the glare of the Touraine hotel in Boston, and then feeling a moving impulse he advanced on New York. Clad in the height of fashion and trailed by a faithful valet, he started to take the town by storm. Sauntering grandly up to the counter in the Waldorf hotel, he asked for rooms. The keen-eyed clerk had seen him first, however, and recognized him as the professional pugilist. Therefore, he lost no time in telling "Philadelphia Jack" that his rooms were all full.

That was a stiffer punch than O'Brien had ever received and straight from the shoulder, too. For a time it looked like a knockout, but the fighter pulled himself and his valet together and went to his chamber. What followed then is told by the newspapers, how O'Brien, the prize fighter, spent twelve hours looking for accommodations. Finally he ran across one of the fashionable hotels where he was not known. There he was accommodated, but immediately when his personality became known he was ordered to leave. The man who "licked Fitzsimmons" came to this! To have gained such renown, and then to go down before the gentle jab in the ribs from the New York hotels! How has the prize fighter fallen! Still, come to think of it, on what basis do the New York hotels discriminate? They allow C. M. Depew et al. to register and occupy rooms. Then why not "Philadelphia Jack"?

JINGLES AND JESTS.

Idle Threats.
 Naggy—My parents used to threaten to beat some sense into my head.

Waggy—Those idle threats that parents never carry out should be discouraged in every way possible.—Baltimore American.

Actually Believed It.
 "Take a sorrowful whale. Slice off part of the wall. And you've got what they call a whale's blubber."
 So the learned one said
 To the girl (on the dead)
 Without really intending to snub her.
 —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

His Wise Assumption.
 "Do you know anything about golf?" asked the energetic person.
 "Yes," said the indolent man, "enough to talk about it and too much to play it in the hot sun."—Washington Star.

But They Don't.
 'Tis a fair world—'twould be the other way
 If men meant all the compliments they pay
 And girls meant all the mean things that they say.
 —Cleveland Leader.

By-ls
The Finest Toilet Talcum Powder

We desire all of our customers to try a little By-ls Violet Borated Talcum Powder and see if they do not think—just as we do—that it is the finest Toilet Talcum Powder they have ever examined. The odor is exquisite. The Powder is smooth as velvet. The antiseptic and astringent products—in addition to its thorough borating—make it remarkably soothing and healing—surpasses other Toilet and Talcum Powders undoubtedly.
PRICE, 25 CENTS.

 Walked 'neath one sun umbrella.
 Where "Indian peaches" reddened high
 And "lemon clings" hung yellow.
 She asked what peach did I prefer.
 And with my brain awired
 I answered as I looked at her.
 "The kind called 'summer girl.'"
 —Judge.

Worse Than She Thought.
 Aunt—But I thought you understood that George is a poor young man when you became engaged to him.
 Niece—Of course I did, but I didn't imagine it went so far as his not being able to get a new automobile till next season.—Smart Set.

It Was So Sudden.
 She—I ought to tell you, I think, that I am already engaged.
 He—Why did you not tell me this yesterday?
 She—Why, you see, yesterday there was nothing to tell.—Judge.

Since the World Began.
 It's the same old song that the robin sings
 And the same old tale that the lover brings;
 It's the same old blue in the same old skies
 And the same old yell when the baby cries.

Those in the Gallery.
 "Pa," asked little Willie, "what does 'food for the gods' mean, anyway?"
 "Probably," replied his father, who was a patron of the drama, "it means peanuts, plus tobacco and such things."
 —Philadelphia Press.

Triplet.
 I begged for a kiss—
 She's inclined to be flirty—
 And, oh, what the bliss
 When I begged for a kiss
 And this lovable miss
 Gave her lips red and pearly!
 I begged for a kiss—
 She's flirty; I am thirty.
 —Milwaukee Sentinel.

He Was Forced to Resign.
 "Weary Willie—I had a good job once, but was forced to resign."
 Mrs. Handout—How was that?
 Weary Willie—Why, because de boss wouldn't fire me.—Judge.

Her Bad Luck.
 There was a young lady named Hoke.
 Who affected the new style of toques,
 But her face was so flax
 'Neath this queer little hat
 When she peered in the mirror it broke.
 —New York Herald.

GALLINGER FOR SHIP BILL.

He Speaks on the Report of the Commission.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Mr. Gallinger, chairman of the Merchant Marine Commission, yesterday addressed the Senate on the commission's shipping bill, thus opening the debate on that question. Quoting the utterances of Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt on the importance of building up the merchant marine, he urged Congress to heed those admonitions by passing a law that would relieve the situation. He said:

"Today alone of all the nations ambitious for mercantile expansion, the United States neglects its ocean shipping. Our coast and lake fleets, protected by federal statutes, are the most prosperous and the greatest in the world. Taking the coast, lake and river ships together, we have a merchant navy of 5,500,000 tons, or six times the size of the poor, shrunken fleet of 888,000 tons registered for foreign commerce. The gradual disappearance of our ship yards, the bankruptcy of our ship merchants, the loss of our skilled mechanics and seamen, though a calamity and a great one, is far less serious than the cramping and withering effect of our lack of American ships on the export trade of the United States. William McKinley's prophetic vision in that final address of his to his countrymen saw that without ships of our own to convey our goods to our customers we should be more and more hopelessly handicapped against our maritime competitors in the neutral markets of the world."

Mr. Gallinger outlined the various measures adopted by Great Britain, Germany and France for the strengthening of their shipping interests. He quoted figures to show that France and England each pay more in the way of subvention to a single line of steamers than this government pays to our entire merchant marine.

WANT ITALIAN CHURCH.

Catholics in Rutland and Vicinity to Appeal to the Pope.

Rutland, Jan. 9.—The Italian speaking people of Rutland and vicinity numbering about 1,000 will petition Pope Pius X of Rome for the erection of a Catholic Church in this city and they will also appeal to the supreme dictator of the Catholic Church to send a priest of their own tongue to reign over them. The Rev. Joseph Marotta of Boston, Italy, a cousin of Peter Bova, a leader among the local Italians, has been asked by Rutland Italians if he would become pastor of the proposed church providing permission were granted by the Pope and he has replied in the affirmative. It is the intention of the Italians to erect a church to cost not less than $4,000.

CHELSEA.

The week of prayer will be observed in this place with union services at the Methodist church Tuesday and Thursday evenings and at the Congregational church Wednesday and Friday evenings.

At the close of the morning service at the Congregational church Joseph Alden Tracy and Mrs. Ida Marshall united with the church by profession and Dr. A. T. Marshall and Mrs. George Lake united with the church by letter, after which the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was celebrated.
 Mrs. George Taplin went to Hanover, N. H. Thursday, where at the Mary Hitchcock hospital she underwent an operation on Saturday for the removal of a tumor in the right breast. The many friends of Mrs. Taplin will rejoice to learn that the operation was successful, and she is doing as well as possibly can be expected, and her ultimate recovery is looked for by her physician. Her daughter, Mrs. Ed. Fuller, accompanied her to Hanover, and Dr. A. T. Marshall went to Hanover Saturday to assist in the operation, returning Saturday evening.
 Leon and Leo Perkins of Gayville came Saturday to visit their brother, W. W. Perkins, proprietor of the Chelsea mills, returning to their home Sunday afternoon.

Miss Marion Camp, who has been visiting friends in South Royalton for a week, has returned and is working for Madam Ann E. Goss, who recently broke her wrist.
